Turkish Airlines goes global

Last March, Turkish Airlines became the first international carrier in 20 years to fly to Somalia. So keen was the company to start service in the war-torn country – not a particularly friendly one to travellers by land (al-Shabab militants), air (the Black Hawk Down incident), or sea (pirates), mind you – that it helped make repairs to the Mogadishu airport.

The jet pack that 'anyone can fly'

A jetpack costing £66,000 has been unveiled which its makers say could be used by the emergency services, the military and also for leisure.

NBAA welcomes global emissions proposals

The National Business Aviation Association has welcomed global moves toward new standards to limit aircraft carbon emissions and continue the process of reducing noise levels.

Chile launches prequalification process for Santiago Airport new terminal construction
